The Story of our Food

Everything that you are about to eat is the result of over twenty years of dedication.

Nearly every component - each item on our menu and in our deli - has been imagined, farmed, and prepared in Myanmar.

Welcome to our restaurant. We warmly invite you to savour our dishes, within each of which is ingrained the story of Sharky's: the decades long lineage of a Myanmar food passion.

A Myanmar Institution

Since 1996, Sharky's has been the place to find fine artisan European food in Myanmar. Known for going to unmatched lengths to provide a peerless dining experience and uphold the famously strict standards of its produce, Sharky's continues to garner praise from media the world over...

The
New York Times

"Sharky has spent a decade hurdling the obstacles of producing European food in the tropics. He experimented with varieties of tomatoes, spinach and arugula that could tolerate steamy heat, and found a remote spot along the Indian Ocean where he could make fleur de sel, the fine salt flakes harvested from the sea. He improvised, using local buffalo milk to make striking facsimiles of French and Swiss cheeses. He attracted a loyal following among diplomats and expatriates, and served one particularly prestigious customer, Daw Aung San Suu Kyi, who ordered Sharky's goat cheese while she was under house arrest.

In a country where rice is the universal staple, Sharky produced brown breads, baguettes and croissants, earning the respect of those with considerable bread-making pedigrees. And in the process, he single-handedly created the beginnings of a food culture here that mixes local resources and Western traditions."

VICE

"Two decades ago, when Myanmar languished in isolation under a military junta and international dining options were all but nonexistent, one forward-thinking maverick was already curing his own prosciutto, making his own cheese, and baking his own artisan bread. Unlike the few other pseudo-Western restaurants peddling pale facsimiles of such dishes to what was then Rangoon's small expat community, Sharky's creations were the real deal. No shortcuts, no substitutions. When founder Ye Htut Win couldn't find an ingredient, he would make it or grow it himself instead."

Artisans

At Sharky's we consider food as craft. In delivering authentic, homemade dishes we pay attention to our production down to the most minute detail. Sharky personally oversees the progression of our kitchen staff, always with the goal of guiding expert craftsmen to the level of master artisans.

Sharky's artisan bakers create over forty fine breads from organic Myanmar grains milled by traditional means; our deli's stone-milled flour (made from 100% Shan heritage wheat) being a prime example. Sharky's boulangerie draws from a wide palette of international baking traditions to offer (to name but a few) Italian-style sourdough, German rye, croissants, heritage corn tortillas and the unique banana flour gluten-free bread.

Sharky's meat products - from our dry-aged beef to our culatello and unique rabbit ham, are hand-made by Sharky's artisan butchers. Consistent with our ethos, everything is made in Myanmar from local ingredients - including Sharky's signature Ngapali fleur de sel.

Sharky mastered the art of cheese production during his years in Switzerland. Today we are proud to offer 11 delectable classics made entirely in Myanmar - with many using buffalo milk - including the unique Golden Black Truffle Cheese which is infused with black truffle and dusted with fine gold leaf.

A microgreen maestro, and the first person to cultivate rocket in Myanmar, Sharky has been growing organic vegetables and herbs in Myanmar for over 20 years.

Sharky's is also home to Kyaw Htut Win - Myanmar's only certified gelato master - who trained at the Gelato University in Bologna, Italy. Sharky's gelato, made with 100% Myanmar fresh milk, is a consistent favourite among visitors and locals alike.
